Indonesia	Mintarso, Helen	Adaptasi Perubahan Iklim dan Ketangguhan (APIK) Project	The purpose of USAID's Adaptasi Perubahan Iklim dan Ketangguhan (APIK) Project is to improve the ability of Indonesians to manage climate and disaster risk. Indonesia is highly vulnerable to both climate change and a wide range of weather-related natural disasters. Given Indonesia's economic growth and settlement patterns, disaster-related economic losses and loss of life will likely have an even larger negative impact on human development in the future, particularly for the poorest and most vulnerable. Therefore, a transformation is needed in the way climate and disaster risks are presently addressed; namely, both the public and private sectors in Indonesia must move to systematically integrate climate change adaptation (CCA) and disaster risk reduction (DRR) into their investments and planning processes.	541990	$10M - $24.99M	TBD	Contract	TBD	2015	9/30/2015	4/17/2015	5 years
