

USAID
FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

PROPOSED ORG CHART FOR REVIEW — AUGUST 2018

FUTURE USAID STRUCTURE

Transforming Our Structure

Field-focused, functionally aligned

We're going to make sure that the structure of this agency is what it needs to be — nimble, and most importantly, field-oriented.

- USAID ADMINISTRATOR MARK GREEN

Through Transformation, USAID will position our structure, workforce, programs and processes to effectively advance national security and support host country partners on their journey to self-reliance.

USAID
FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

Through a series of employee-led and interconnected reforms, USAID will transform its STRUCTURE

- The proposed changes to the Office of the Administrator would more effectively manage the complexity of USAID's work by creating two Associate Administrators.
- The proposed Bureau for Humanitarian Assistance would advance our goal of seamlessly delivering food and non-food disaster aid.
- The proposed Resilience and Food Security Bureau would build resilient communities and countries, and improve water security.
- The proposed Conflict Prevention and Stabilization Bureau would strengthen our capacity to prevent conflict, address fragility, and respond to global crises.
- The proposed Policy, Resources and Performance Bureau would align Agency program and operating expense resources with development policy priorities.
- The proposed Democracy, Development and Innovation Bureau would reorient decision-making toward the field.
- The proposed Bureau for Asia would create stronger regional coordination and strategies, aligning to Interagency priorities.
